Money needed to pay benefits
£176,447,000

Shortfall
£13,815,000

Funding level

This update states the estimated position of the Fund as at 1 January 2021.

Since the last update (as at 1 January 2020), the shortfall has increased. The main reason for this is changes in market conditions, which has led to a higher value being placed on the amount needed to pay benefits.

When the value of benefits is greater than the assets held, the Press and Trustee must agree a plan to safeguard members' pensions by making sure the assets catch up.

At the last valuation as at 1 January 2019, the Press agreed to pay £1.3m per year from 1 January 2020 to 31 December 2021 to top up the assets of the Fund.

This statement gives you an update on the estimated financial position of the Cambridge University Press Contributory Pension Fund (the Fund).

The Fund is a Defined Benefit scheme. This means that it gives you an income for life.

The Trustee uses the assets of the Fund to pay pensions to Fund members, including those members who have not yet retired. The assets are held separately from Cambridge University Press (the Press). Assets can only be returned to the Press if they are more than is needed to arrange for an insurance company to pay all benefits. No such payment to the Press has been made since the date of the last statement.

Your Fund's finances

Working out the value of the benefits promised to members – how much money we need to pay all the members' pensions – is not an exact science. It depends on several things, including inflation, investment returns and how long its members live.

A full valuation is carried out every three years. As part of the valuation, the Fund's actuary calculates whether the assets are worth more than the amount we think is needed to pay out the benefits. If that is not the case, then the Trustee and the Press will agree what action needs to be taken.

Changes in the value of the Fund's assets and the money needed to pay benefits over the past three years are shown below. The next full valuation will review the position as at 1 January 2022. This will take up to 15 months to complete.

This funding update shows that the assets of the Fund are less than the amount needed to pay all benefits to members. This is not unusual.

The assets

The Trustee has an investment strategy in place to make the most of the Fund's assets by holding a mix of investments in the following way:

Within each investment class, we aim to hold a mixture of assets.

As a consequence of the disruption caused to financial markets by the impact of COVID-19, 2020 was a very challenging year. Despite this, the Fund's assets returned 3% during 2020.

Winding up the Fund – The buy-out position

If the Press, which effectively acts on behalf of the University, wants to let go of its responsibility for the Fund, or is unable to support the Fund, the Fund will be wound up. This means that the Press / the University will have to pay a one-off contribution to the Fund to cover the extra cost of getting an insurance company to take on the responsibility of paying all Fund benefits. If this had happened at 1 January 2019 the contribution required from the Press / the University would have been an estimated £125.1m.

The Pensions Regulator looks after work-based pension schemes and has certain powers it can use if it has concerns about a scheme. It has not used any of these powers in relation to the Fund.

Additional protection

If an employer becomes insolvent, the Pension Protection Fund can pay compensation to members in certain circumstances. Further details are available at www.pensionprotectionfund.co.uk.

If you are thinking of leaving the Fund for any reason, you should consult a professional adviser, such as an independent financial adviser, before taking action. You are legally required to do so if the value of the transfer exceeds £30,000.

Pension scams

We urge you to be vigilant against pension scams. Should you have any unsolicited approaches from companies offering to undertake pension reviews, or offering you an opportunity to access your pension fund early, please visit the Financial Conduct Authority website before taking any action:
